New York — An electrical storm, which swept over the metropolitan district early Tuesday night at Long Beach, L. I., killed Bert Savoy of the stage team of Brennan and Savoy, and Jack Grossman, also of the theatrical profession, who was with him, and caused the death of a 17-year-old Brooklyn and an 18-year-old youth of Greenvale.

Uprooting trees, felling telephone poles, the storm wreaked havoc throughout the Brooklyn and sections of Long Island.

Savoy and Grossman were killed by the same bolt of lightning. They were strolling together on the beach when they were struck. They had been in bathing.

The death of Savoy shocked the Rialto. For eight years he had been a member of the Savoy and Brennan team, one of the best known present day vaudeville teams in the country, and had drawn the plaudits of thousands of theater goers from coast to coast for his clever comedy.

Grossman, known as Jack Vincent, vaudeville actor and song writer, also was well known.

Miss Bertha Vail was killed and two others were injured during the height of the storm in Brooklyn when the wind demolished a high brick wall that fell on an automobile in which they were riding.

Probable showers are forecast for Wednesday night, with cooler temperatures Thursday. Looks like the forecast for June is going to be "raw, raw-cooked, rare and back to raw." Say, were you out Tuesday night at the wonderful fair? Did you drink that silvery moon peculiar to the katy-dids didding? Did any squitos meet you? If so, how? JANESVILLE FAIR BOOKS ARE READY

Judges Named by Fair Board —Feature Junior Club Exhibits.

Premium lists are out for the Janesville fair, Aug. 7, 8, 9 and 10, and can be obtained at the office of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce or from J. J. McCann, secretary.

Premiums on livestock have been increased and it is the intention of the fair board to give better ribbons.

The feature of the livestock show will be the junior club exhibit, for which $1,000 in premiums has been offered.

The judges named by the fair board are as follows: Arthur Webb, Albany; Beef and Milking Shorthorns, J. Nelson Chamberlain, Beloit; dairy breeds, Robert Hinger, Argosville, Ill.; sheep, Harry Broughton, Albany; swine, J. M. Fargo, Madison.

Prof. James G. Moore, Madison, will judge in the farm and garden products division.

The judges for the junior club department are as follows: Dairy club exhibit, Prof. George C. Humphrey, Madison; pig club, T. M. Fargo, baby beef, George C. Humphrey, Madison; sheep club, Harry Broughton.

The dairy calves will be judged Wednesday morning, Aug. 8; the pig club calves, Thursday, Aug. 9; the baby beef calves, Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 8. The sheep club entries will also be judged Wednesday afternoon.

No cattle either in the open class competition or in the junior clubs will be allowed on the grounds until test sheets showing a clean bill of health for tuberculosis are produced by the owner.

GET PIGS READY FOR CLUB INSPECTION

There's a tip for the members of the local county junior pig club.

Saturday afternoon and Sunday is a good time to fix up the club pigs clean and "dressed up" for inspection. If it is a good day many of the city men, partners of the club boy and girl, will make their first trip to see the partnership pigs.

The contracts have been distributed to many of the clubs of Janesville and other cities and the second party of the contract has been urged to pay the first party a visit at once.

Norman Carl, Janesville, took six club contracts and the Dillingham and Hixon Lumber company, through Harold Dane, contacted five pigs. Trips to club members shows that many of the juniors have their pigs as tame as the farm dog.

INSPECTIONS MADE ON DAIRY CALF CLUB

E. P. Coon, Milton, secretary of the local county Dairy Calf club, reports good progress is being made by the club boys and girls. Members in the Beloit and Clinton district were visited recently and each member's calf is being planned to visit the club members in the Orfordville, Footville and Evansville section.

"Some of the club members are putting up their calves in the calves and not treating them for showing," stated Mr. Coon. The club animals are fairly uniform and even in type, and thus far 1 has not found a calf that does not look like a sure winner in the Holstein group."

HERE'S GOOD NEWS ABOUT THE PIE CROP

The cut over timberland district of northern Wisconsin will yield one of the heaviest crops of raspberries in recent years, according to the reports of game wardens. The dry spell this spring has not seriously affected the bushes.

PICNIC AT MONROE

The Green county Farm Bureau picnic will be held at Monroe instead of Albany, due to an epidemic of disease near Albany. The picnic will be held Thursday.

TO JUDGE CATTLE

Dane county livestock breeders will hold demonstration and picnic at Oregon Thursday. J. C. Nisbet, Rock county, has been asked to judge the cattle exhibit in the dairy demonstration.

4 Baptist Girls to Boston Meeting

The Misses Fanno Mowley, Margery Ridley, Margaret Clark and Esther Currier will leave Janesville Thursday morning for Boston, Mass., to attend the International convention of the Baptist Young People's Union. They are to visit Washington, D. C., Philadelphia and New York city, going to Boston by boat from New York. While in Boston they are to visit the many historical sites of the city.

On the return trip the delegates are to go through the White mountains, up the St. Lawrence river to Montreal and back to Wisconsin by way of the lakes, stopping at Detroit, Mich.

The convention opens July 4 and continues through to July 5.

NEED REST ROOMS FOR CELEBRATION

With thousands expected to come to Janesville on the night of July 3 and throughout July 4 to witness the huge Fourth of July celebration, a call is issued by the Chamber of Commerce for rest rooms. These rooms are to be conducted for the comfort of women and children.

The Day We All Celebrate!

July 4th is the day we look forward to with something of the spirit of appreciation of the land we live in—our country!

Let the folds of the flag—our flag—be unfurled. As it snaps gaily in the breezes, let it re-kindle patriotism and stir afresh in us the allegiance we so richly owe it.

It is the emblem of our country, signifying independence and a determination to self-control.

It has waved valiantly and triumphantly at home and abroad.

May it never be dishonored!

On the day we all celebrate, let it be saluted.

Our Store will be closed on July 4th.

AT THE THEATERS

AT THE BEVERLY.
 A strong, unforgettable picture has been made of Sir Hall Caine's novel, "The Christian," now showing at the Beverly.
 Perhaps the story has been changed some but the picture has one quality that makes all of Hall Caine books greater than ordinary fiction—an unexplainable stirring of human passions brought out always against some background of struggle. In "The Christian" the passion is that of a preacher for a stage hutterly and the climax comes when thousands wait in Trafalgar square for the end of the world, predicted by John Storm, the preacher. Mob scenes are unusually well handled, and many authentic scenes of London and the Isle of Man are seen.

AT THE APOLLO.
 Betty Compson and Richard Dix are featured in the principal roles of the Paramount picture, "The Woman With Four Faces," which opened at the Apollo theater, Tuesday night, and which proved itself a photoplay ranking with the best of the current season.

This picture brings Miss Compson to the screen in a most unusual role, that of Elizabeth West, a magnetic girl and a clever crook. By putting her talent to lawful use, Elizabeth succeeds in exposing a rising flim, which wins the love of District Attorney Templar (Richard Dix), under whose direction she works. There are thrills aplenty.

ROTARY HOST TO MANY DELEGATES
 Delegates to the two conventions being held in Jansville were guests of the local Rotary club at luncheon at the Grand hotel Tuesday. Attendants at the national gathering of educators of the blind and a large number of circuit judges here for the state bar meeting were present. Economic conditions in France and Germany were discussed in a talk by Prof. L. S. Smith of the University of Wisconsin. He said there was little chance of telling when the situation will clear itself, though Germany may recover more quickly than France.

Birthdays of A. J. Brandt, Louis Levy and H. H. Bliss were observed.

Haan, who comes direct from Washington, D. C., and will be honorary marshal and speaker of the day. In the evening the Holton-Elkhorn band will give a concert.

LARGE FIRMS CAN EXPEDITE MAILS

A helpful suggestion has been given out by Postmaster J. J. Cunningham for concerns sending out large quantities of circular mail matter. If they wish this matter's delivery expedited, separating it according to states and cities, if there is a great deal going to any one city, will aid postal workers in the local office. This holds true on mail matter for which a permit is obtained, and for that which is sent by the usual stamp method.

FORT READY FOR WELCOME TO VETS

Fort Atkinson—The city is ready for a grand welcome to the Spanish War Veterans, who will arrive in large numbers Wednesday and Thursday.

Welcome signs are up at both extremities of Main street and one at the depot. Flags are hung across the streets and decorate the lamp posts, which are topped with colored lights. Many business houses have window decorations and the front of the Black Hawk tavern, headquarters for the encampment, is decorated.

The most striking display is that of a large serpent on the top of the Bull Milking Machine building. The sign board on which it is painted is 18 by 20 feet, and the serpent will be lighted by flood lights.

From information already received this will be the largest encampment of Spanish War Veterans ever held in the state. Twelve left Superior Tuesday by auto and will arrive here late Wednesday. The McGinnis camp of Milwaukee has sent word that it will be here, 100 strong. On Saturday, in addition to attractions already advertised, the Wisconsin Veterans Drum Corps of Milwaukee will be here. More preparations for featuring the Military Order of the Serpent have been made by this encampment than ever before.

HOOPER HONORED BY NATIONAL ASS'N

Is Elected Vice-President at Closing Session—Robert B. Irwin Named President.

Amid cheers for the new and retiring officers, adoption of a new constitution, and payment of respect to revered workers who have died recently, the biennial convention of the American Association of Workers for the Blind meeting at the state school for the blind the past week, closed Tuesday afternoon.

Officers are: Robert B. Irwin, New York city, president; Supt. J. T. Hooper, Janesville, first vice president; Miss Anna Johnson, Chicago, second vice president; Charles Hayes, Kansas City, secretary; and Harry Hartman, Seattle, Wash., treasurer.

Selection of the place for the 1932 convention is left to the executive committee and probably will be chosen within the next year. Nebraska City, Neb., was the only one mentioned. The association was backed up by the Nebraska school for the blind, state board of control, Nebraska Association for the Blind and the Nebraska City Chamber of Commerce.

Irwin's Election Unanimous
Mr. Irwin was the unanimous choice for successor to H. Randolph Lattimer, New York city, who has served four years as president. He was elected upon a teacher of the blind and under the rules only a blind person is eligible.

Mr. Irwin is director of research of the American Foundation for the Blind, founded by the American Association of Workers for the Blind, and is located in New York city. Prior to assuming the duties he was superintendent of work for the blind in public schools of 11 Ohio cities, stationed at Cleveland, O. He is a graduate of the University of Washington and Harvard university. He was given an A. B. at Washington and an M. A. at Harvard. He is 40 years old.

Endorse Lions' Work
The association heartily endorsed the activity of the Lions' clubs of Ohio and other states that have undertaken welfare work for the blind. Resolutions were passed endorsing the Lions' International convention at Atlantic City for its annual meeting, expressing the hope that the organization will continue its work of adopting welfare work for blind children as a special interest. The hopes expressed that the Lions' club will aid its way in the future in some way in this undertaking with the American Foundation for the Blind.

Organizations of ex-presidents of the association into an advisory council is authorized and requested in the belief that "the knowledge and experience gained in years of public service, and the valuable assets of civilized life and such knowledge and experience is of the greatest value when appropriately harnessed."

The chairmanship of the advisory council will be according to seniority of service as president.

Plea to California
A plea that California will not discontinue its home teaching for the blind, was sent to Governor Friend W. Richardson of California. The resolution says: "We regard California's leadership in home teaching vital to our national rehabilitation work. Home teaching converts blind men, who are not only a source of wealth producers and is real economy."

Formation of a home teachers' circle for mutual help in solving individual problems was sanctioned by the A. A. W. B. The officers of directing committee will be appointed by the president of the A. A. W. B. and approval of the Executive Council, Chicago, as an informal branch of the A. A. W. B. was given.

Study Relief Laws
Request that the American Foundation make a study and recommendation for the guidance of states considering blind relief laws is made in another resolution.

The president will appoint a committee of five persons to investigate and report at the next convention upon organizations composed exclusively of blind members.

A rising vote of thanks was given Supt. and Mrs. Hooper, their family staff and assistants for the way in which they have been entertained. The thanks of the association was extended to those furnishing automobiles for the Madison trip, the 15 high school girls waiting on tables and those groups which furnished music for the convention.

Through adoption of the report of the necrology committee, the memory of those workers for the blind who have died the past two years, was honored. Including two who served at the Wisconsin school here. They are: Miss Margaret K. Davidson, boys' supervisor at the Wisconsin school for the blind for 18 years, who died Feb. 25, and Andrew J. Hutton, superintendent of the Wisconsin school for the blind in 1901 and 1902, who died at Waukesha, March 15, 1922.

Danger to Fire Station Averted; Jones Feet-Bill

Fears that excavation for Harry F. Jones' Franklin theater might result in collapse of the north wall of No. 1 fire station were set at rest Wednesday when the job of extending the station's foundation further into the ground was completed without mishap. The work was done by Emil Pautz, contractor on the theater job, following an arrangement made between Mr. Jones and members of the city council, and Mr. Jones has agreed not to change the existing building for the work, although it was admittedly a city obligation to pay for protecting its own structure.

The job became necessary when work was started for the seven-foot foundation for the theater. The fire station wall was found only four feet in the ground in places. It was filled in with concrete to a seven foot depth by doing it in sections. Steel erectors are on the theater job and already have six of the big columns in place for the cover. About 25 men are employed in the general construction, most of them engaged in pouring concrete for the foundation and footings.

ODD FELLOWS AID MEMORIAL SERVICES
Twenty members of the Janesville Unit, No. 2, Janesville city lodge No. 20 and Wisconsin lodge No. 14, Odd Fellows, were in Beloit, Sunday morning assisting the Beloit lodge in the annual memorial services at Second Congregational church. The local Odd Fellows also assisted recently in the memorial at Delavan and were in turn visited by the Delavan and Beloit lodges when their memorial was held at Methodist church.

our high school graduates, our immigrants, the truth and fundamental about the United States constitution without a thorough foundation and knowledge of the facts behind it—the controversies between many English kings, especially those of the Stuart line, and their parliament? I believe it is an "impossibility."

President Shea's address was scholarly and proved of value.

Pools Open to Delegates
There followed a report by Judge Charles J. Pilsbury about local entertainment of the delegates. He announced that both swimming pools in the high school are open for any members of the bar, and also announced coming events of the convention.

Eight different committees reported at the afternoon session, many of them being the usual routine reports heard each year. All however, showed a healthy condition of the association and foretold a bright future. Those who gave them were: Judicial committee—John C. Thompson, chairman, Oskosh. (It was voted that this committee be given authority to select three from its membership of seven to act as a smaller committee for more frequent meetings. Chairman of one will be chairman of both.) Necrology—Charles B. Rogers, Mt. Atkinson.

Membership—T. L. Doyle, Fond du Lac. Legal education—H. S. Richards, Madison. Publication—Frank L. McNamara, Milwaukee.

Committee on Pres. Thompson's address—George E. Morton, Milwaukee.

On address of President Whitehead—Victor L. Minahan, Green Bay.

On address of Herbert Harley, L. J. Nash, Manitowish.

Delegates who have been attending the conference of Bar association delegates of the country, National Civic Federation, and American Academy of Political and Social Science, all reported at this session, and the meeting closed with 8 p. m.

Many Reunions Seen
The intervening hours were spent mostly in visiting, as many of the delegates came in during the noon hour and afternoon session and had not seen one another. Up down restaurants and hotels were popular places while the high school was also the scene of much activity among those who plan to meet once again at the conference, if not more often.

Spread Gospel That America Is Right, Plea of Iowa Judge at Bar Meeting.

Forcing good will upon the heart of your neighbor and telling into a darkened soul the feeling that after all the purpose of America is right, is the remedy for the present wave of dissatisfaction and discontent of the American people and the nation of American government offered by Judge M. J. Wade, Iowa City, speaking at the high school auditorium here Tuesday night before the Wisconsin Bar association on "The Defense of Our National Institutions."

The United States district court judge declared his attention was first called to the situation in this country when there were people who "refused to abide by the judgment and will of the majority of the American people" and did what they could to obstruct the work of the United States during the World war.

"I sent a man to prison for 20 years for distributing an article spoken by a United States senator prior to the enactment of the espionage law and who was therefore protected," the judge declared.

Two Classes Cause Trouble
"I don't want anyone to feel from what I say tonight that I am a pessimist. I am not. I am an optimist."

Judge Wade said there are two classes of men and women in the world that are causing more trouble in the formation of public opinion than any other. These he said are the extreme optimist who goes about with a constant smile on his face, and the extreme pessimist who has a sad countenance and believes everything is wrong.

Condemns Disloyal People
Judge Wade said he is an optimist not because he doesn't see things that are wrong but because he has supreme faith in the power and conscience of the American people to make right everything that is wrong.

He said that a recent newspaper story announced that there remain in prisons in the United States 53 men and women because of their thoughts.

"No man or woman went to prison during the war because of any opinion or the expression of that opinion alone," he declared. It was whether the war and judges instructed juries on these three points. I don't care what any man says, I don't believe anyone has the right when the stress of war threatens this country to weaken the arm that is upholding the flag."

Men and women, the judge declared, have had equal rights in the court long before suffrage was declared, given equal sentences for same offenses.

Indifference Is Danger
Judge Wade said that the dominant danger to America is not the soap box orator, although he is doing his share in denouncing the nation.

But the great endangering force to America is the gross indifference of the people to the problems of American life, he said, stating that 20,000,000 Americans didn't have interest enough to go to the polls and vote.

He said as far as the do nothing branch of the people they are offering criticism but nothing constructive to remedy the situation. Others are doing nothing every day, the wheels are grinding and the press is

Crushed Strawberry Jam
For this jam it is necessary that each berry be broken up. Therefore, crush about 2 quarts ripe berries in separate portions, so that each berry is washed. This allows fruit to quickly absorb the sugar during the cooking. Add 7 level cups (2 lbs.) crushed berries into large kettle, add 7 level cups (2 lbs.) sugar and 1/2 cup lemon juice. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one full hour. From time jam is taken off fire allow 1/2 bottle (about 1/2 cup) CERTO to cool slightly, then pour quickly into open glasses, seal at once. Use same recipe for Raspberry, Blackberry or Loganberry jam.

Crush well about 1 1/2 ripe berries. Put pineapple through food cutter, or chop very fine. Measure 1 level cup (1 lb.) of crushed pineapple and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for 1 minute, pour quickly.

The Lawyer of Today and Yesterday.

Just as distant fields are always greenest, so we are quite apt to think that the things of yesterday were better than those of the present. As we move to the goal of a higher and better civilization the impedimenta grow heavier and we feel confident that in the past they were much lightened. A great state bar association is meeting here in annual convention. It has a world of glorious tradition. From the very beginnings of the state we have been blessed with able jurists, advocates and counselors at the bar. From the time of Doty, with high altruism in a period of rough and ready legal methods, to the present moment, Wisconsin has no apology to make for the membership of its bar. Rock county is keenly alive to this fact. From the membership of its bar it furnished the first chief justice of the supreme court of Wisconsin after it became a state in 1848, in E. V. Whitton. It was in the courts of this circuit that Matt Carpenter first won his laurels as an advocate. That was a day of slow traveling and high thinking. It was typical of the civilization which was then transforming the state from wilderness into a series of rich fields, industrial centers and populous and progressive communities. The requirements for an admission to the bar were less severe than now. Practice was the keynote to success and native wit and resource often took the place of legal learning.

But there was always a jealous regard for human rights and the protection of the rights of persons in property among the members of the bar. Reminiscences of those days have been many—not enough to impress as fully as it might be desired, the tremendous opportunity now enjoyed by students of the law over the men of those other days. If one falls now it is because that outstanding opportunity is not accepted and every advantage taken of it. The old method weeded out the incompetent and cast aside the lazy, the indolent and the student with the sluggish mind. Law is now and was ever a jealous mistress interposing herself at the most critical moment between the beginner and his success, rewarding for continuity, and punishing for wandering away from the set path with public neglect and a dearth of clients.

To the layman the present would seem to hold so many distinct advantages over the past as to present a comparison. The lawyer of today is almost buried under a mass of statutory law which the attorney and counselor of an early period did not have to bother about. It was non-existent. Basic principles had been declared and common law was final in adjudication of differences. Decisions were often more ethical than legal. Often too the legal maxim that the end justified the means, especially in trial of criminal cases, was of greater force than a nicer adherence to a higher code of practice.

The need for lawyers was never greater than now and the lawyer, with a sterling belief in the justice of his cause, or one who is unafraid of speaking the truth to irate and revengeful client, is a distinct advantage to a community. We have better lawyers than ever, not only by the very necessities of the law but by the regulations for matriculation and study and the advantages presented for students. There will always be shysters, ambulance chasers and others in the ragged edge of crime so long as we are not making the human race.

But their number is few. Disbarment is legal death in more ways than one. Few men could face it with equanimity. Desire may be there, opportunity may present itself for betrayal of client or public, but the moral restraint which comes as a natural corollary of membership in the legal profession is a potent force for salvation. The great majority of membership in the American Bar needs no such check.

The old lawyer might have been more picturesque, he might have been more magnificent before a jury which he overwhelmed with climactic periods and tremendous rhetoric, his pleadings were less involved with precedent than now, but in this workaday world, as we know the bar of Wisconsin, we are pleased to believe the lawyer of 1923 is better equipped and actuated by equally as high motives and as great an altruism as in the days of reminiscence.

The straw vote is bringing a lot of chaff for candidates.

The Assembly Tells the Senate

Assemblyman John Gaupier's resolution sent to the senate on Tuesday was a foolhardy piece of nonsense. It violated every legislative rule of decency and further as a coercive measure can only have, the effect to make the senate more certain of defeating tax bills. The Gaupier resolution is a threat that no appropriations will be passed unless carrying surtaxes with which to raise the money appropriated. It says the Dahl bill just passed, or which was once the Dahl bill but after getting a few patches from the governor's office and another from LaFollette Jr., became the Hansen bill, is for the benefit of the farmer. Almost at the same time a LaFollette leader, William Maue, of Fond du Lac, was announcing that the bill gave no relief to the farmer whatever. Mr. Maue shows clearly that passed as it is, the Hansen bill will not relieve the farmer of his real estate tax though it will

SCIENCE IN INDUSTRY
By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—Big business is coming more and more to realize the place that science occupies in everyday work. One of the many tangible evidences of this is the Structural Materials Research Laboratory established by the cement industry at Lewis Institute, Chicago. In a decade this laboratory has done work that affects every city, town and hamlet in the country and reached out into all the corners of the world. Prior to 1914 there was but little exact knowledge as to the principles to be followed in order to obtain the maximum value and efficiency in the use of Portland cement. This product has been manufactured in this country since 1872, but it had taken long years for it to win acceptance as a building material of diverse uses. The men who were developing the industry were well aware of the handicap they had to overcome, and finally they decided that the best move they could make would be to invite the cooperation of scientists. Accordingly the laboratory was founded in connection with Lewis Institute.

It has none of the atmosphere of big business. The rooms are filled with covered looking machines and instruments. Glass covered cabinets are filled with hundreds of bottles containing test samples. The visitor gets the impression that he is in a place where technical terminology is the only language spoken, and where operations beyond the understanding of the average layman are carried on. However, after a brief period of inspection and study, and with a few words of explanation from one of the research experts in charge, the laboratory takes on a more inviting aspect, and it is easy to comprehend that its work is of direct application to the practical problem of everyday life.

When the laboratory was started Professor Duff A. Abrams, considered one of the highest authorities in the country on the use of cement in concrete, was selected to take charge. The only instructions given him were to find out everything that is to be known about concrete. So thorough were the initial tests, and so painstaking were the reports in their research, that it was four years before the first bulletin was issued on the results of the tests. Since that time hundreds of thousands of tests have been carried out, and numerous bulletins have been issued for the benefit of concrete users, instructing them how to get the best possible results from the material, and demonstrating to the world in general the importance of scientific research to modern business.

One of the notable results of the experiments conducted in the laboratory has been in connection with the use of water in concrete. It was found that the amount of water used in making concrete was quite as important as the amount of sand, cement or gravel. These investigations made possible the attainment of a substantial increase in the strength of concrete without increasing the quantity of cement used. When the results had been checked thoroughly, and the experts were certain of their conclusions, the information was put in bulletin form and distributed to thousands of concrete users. Results of other experiments are made available similarly.

A "sand library"—a collection of sand samples at the laboratory—is probably the most complete that has ever been assembled. For ten years these specimens have been collected. There are sands from the Pacific Coast, from New England, from every other section of the United States, and from Cuba, Mexico, Canada and other foreign countries. They have been carefully tested and the results of these tests are preserved in the files. This information includes the source of each sample, the grading, its content and colorimetric tests for organic impurities. In most instances mortar and concrete tests have also been made. This research work has shown the suitability of the various sands for use in concrete and the records in the sand library are of great interest and value to the building world.

One section of the laboratory is devoted to the testing of specimens of concrete. The material is worked into cylinders, a foot long and six inches in diameter. Each cylinder is labeled with the kind of aggregate used, the proportions of materials and the date of making. These samples are filed away in a huge chamber which is kept at a constant temperature, winter and summer. A dense fog-like spray from atomizers is attached to water pipes as played over the cylinders day and night, as long as they are in the room. Some of these specimens are a few days old—others have been there for six or eight years. At times there are as many as 12,000 cylinders in the collection and it has been necessary to construct another curing room within the last few weeks.

When taken from the curing room the cylinders are tested in various ways and the results are fully noted for bulletin use and for presentation before various technical societies. One of the big machines used in these tests is capable of subjecting the cylinders to a pressure of 300,000 pounds, and there is now being installed an even bigger machine that can exert a pressure of 2,000,000 pounds. In it, entire walls of concrete blocks and other materials can be tested.

In contrast with these gigantic testing machines there are delicate instruments capable of measuring the sizes of the minute particles of finely ground cement. By means of an air analyzer it has been determined that approximately six million particles would be required to cover a piece of glass one inch square if they could be laid in closely fitting rows. There is a sieve machine consisting of various sized sieves. The dust of these is so delicate that it is finer than silk and will hold water. It has 40,000 holes to a square inch.

An odd looking machine is used to test small briquettes and measure the strength of the cement. It resembles an old-fashioned scales, with a bucket containing lead shot on one arm and a counter-poise to balance it on the other. The shot run out of the bucket until the weight removed is sufficient to permit the counterpoise to break the briquette held in the jaws of the machine.

make the manufacturer and others in receipt of taxable income contribute more to government. The only result achieved will be that several millions more than an economical administration of the laws would demand will be levied and thus be a temptation for greater extravagance, while the farmer will go on paying the same as before. The senate very wisely refuses to submit to such an insulting harangue from the assembly. It is said that Senator Huber, chairman of the joint finance committee, is in favor of an increased appropriation for the university. The new law concerning the appointment of regents gives the administration control here and the $200,000 additional is needed badly in Mr. Elaine's business. Hence the anxiety of Senator Huber for the additional sum. The principle of the sur tax to each appropriation is the worst piece of anarchy in tax legislation devised. It does not relieve the farmer one cent, since no provision is made for a reduction of taxes which the farmer now pays and it will be just short of confiscation of industrial property in Wisconsin. The tax middle is growing worse as the end of the session is in sight. Red destruction has given way to any constructive program. The latest bill is the mere afterthought. Whatever mask has been used heretofore has been thrown aside and the rampant radical is riding high.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE GOLDEN USED TO BE
When time shall beat
The slow retreat
From littered desk and city street.
When worn and gray,
I turn to you,
Then I shall live with Yesterday.
Then I shall rest
From every test,
My sun just fading in the west;
The past will be
A glow for me
With glorious faces I shall see.
And who can say,
Perhaps today
Along the future's winding way
Will find my door,
And shine once more
With splendor brighter than before.
With all the throng
I rush along
Too tense for laughter and for song;
Yet in my brain
Some lifting strain
Of oldtime music may remain.
Life holds us fast
Until the last
And all the need for strife is past;
Then older grown,
We sit alone
With all the pleasures we have known.
But looking back
Along life's track,
We loose the strings round Memory's pack,
With eyes aglow,
Once more we know
The happiness of long ago.
Where hearth fires burn
Old friends return,
No joy is lost for which we yearn,
And age can find
There shines behind
A charm to which his youth was blind.
Too near today
Are mirth and play,
Too swift the pace, too rough the way,
Yet some day we Shall turn and see
Each golden joy which used to be.

EVER TRUS
I know all about the horses.
I can do them to a turn.
There is nothing you can tell me.
There is nothing I can learn.
I have tips for everybody.
I give friends the proper steers.
But I haven't won a bet to—
Let me see! About two years.
There's a gop, my next-door-neighbor,
He's a greenhorn on the nags.
Can't tell jumper from a trotter,
And he never makes his brags.
I have watched him for five seasons
He's an awful dummble yet.
Since I've known this poor flat-wheeler
He has never lost a bet.

Who's Who Today

CHARLES A. RAWSON
Current rumors state that ex-Senator Charles A. Rawson of Iowa may succeed John T. Adams as chairman of the national Republican committee when the 1924 presidential campaign gets under way.

Handling political maneuvering is not a new world to Rawson. He served as chairman of the Republican state central committee in his home state of Iowa from 1923 to 1922 and managed the campaign of William S. Kenyon when the ex-senator ran for the senatorial post in 1921.
When Kenyon resigned his seat in February, 1922, to take a judgeship, appointment Rawson was named to succeed him and served the rest of his term.
Rawson is a native son of Iowa. He was born in Des Moines May 29, 1867. He was educated in grammar and high school and Grinnell college. He has been interested in lay products concerns since 1883 and has extensive banking interests.
Rawson's selection to handle the C. O. P. campaign will be engineered to bring together the rival factions in the Republican household, it is said.

Personal Health Service

Noted Physician and Author.

THE DANGER OF HAVING CONCUSSION
The mythical "brain fever" of the non-scientist is a misnomer. It is encountered as it is in an otherwise fairly satisfactory murder story only the other day, rather the unsophisticated author threatened one of his characters with "brain fever" if the luckless character was excited or annoyed in any way. Heroes or heroines of the old dime novelized, don't get excited, don't get angry, don't get into a passion, when the emotion reached a furious pitch. They did it as readily as they swooned out or difficult situations. There was great days for authors.

In one way it is regrettable that "brain fever" has become generally known as meningitis and that meningitis is a matter of getting into the skull somehow and infecting the lining of the skull and covering of the brain. An ugly thought—for a hero or heroine under emotional stress. Twenty years of meningitis are commonly conveyed in the story given off from nose and mouth of a talking person who is a carrier. So that accounts for the brain fever.

Concussion is about as mysterious and impressive to the lay mind today as "brain fever" was to the old time novel reader. Just what this concussion is I am unable to define or describe very closely. It is something like Conan Doyle's "concussion" I gather, palpable only to the elect. Concussion is the vague, anxious, uncertain stage between the shock following a hit or injury and the coma or unconsciousness which occurs from fracture of the skull or from hemorrhage within the skull and pressure of the blood clot upon the brain. Concussion may well be classified with nervous breakdown and a heavy cold—alibis pending a definite diagnosis. There is nothing whatever gained by submitting the term of concussion for shock. The shock following an injury to body or limb is precisely the same condition as the shock following an injury to the head. Why drag in concussion and sometimes seriously misleading term? There is no such condition as concussion apart from ordinary shock. To confuse a faint stupor of coma from concussion, in the presence of possible fracture of the skull or bleeding within the skull, is simply sacrificing the patient's chance of recovery by prompt surgical intervention. An imaginary "concussion" drifting along for days without an interval of consciousness is almost certainly skull fracture; in such circumstances it is

Q. Are the oceans deeper on the average far from shore or near?
A. W. A. There are shallows and deeps, and apart from the floor the surface has its ups and downs. This is due notably to the gravitational pull of the sun and moon, which implies an uping-up of waters around the shores. The surface of the mid Indian ocean is thus lowered by the Himalayas, 115 feet per cent of the ocean floor lies between the shore line and the 1,000 fathoms.

Q. How many receiving ships has the United States navy and what are the names?
A. The navy now has six receiving ships. Men are assigned to them temporarily between permanent stations. That is, when a man is transferred from one station he is often placed on a receiving ship until his orders come through for his next station.

Q. On what day of the week was the first consecration of the District of Columbia held?
A. April 15, 1801, fell on Friday. On this day, with Masonic ceremonies, the southern corner of the square, at a point a little below Alexandria, Va., was marked with the first stone.

Q. What precious stones are rare and what are compounds?
A. The diamond is the outstanding example of a pure precious stone; the emerald is a variety of quartz; the opal is a strange combination of rare chemical elements while in the the chemistry of it is more like a medieval doctor's prescription than the making of a respectable mineral. Rubies and sapphires are varieties of corundum which is the oxide of aluminum.

Q. What makes the oil of colors seen in crude oil?
A. B. The iridescence seen on a thin film of oil is due to certain phenomena which result from the mutual action of the rays of light on one another.

Q. How are unbreakable glasses made?
A. G. F. A. So-called unbreakable glasses are made from borate acid glass, compositions of which are usually patented. The chief factor in their strength is the method of cooling, which is done by dropping the lenses in oils of various mixtures.

Q. Isn't there a biblical saying that cheerfulness is better than medicine?
D. C. In Proverbs, xvii, 22, you will find, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

Eight Heirs to $30,000 Estate

Petition for probate of the will of the late David Clark, Janesville, was filed Tuesday in Rock county court by his son, David Clark, Jr., Lafayette, Ind. The Clark estate is valued at $30,000 and includes $5,000 real estate and $25,000 personal property. Mr. Clark's heirs are composed of six children and two grandchildren. The children are William Clark, town of Hammond, David Clark, Lafayette, Ind.; George Clark, Avon; Margaret Dean, Avon; Isabel Smiley, Janesville, and Mary Cary, Evansville. The grandchildren are Donald C. Ashton and Bessie Ashton, Janesville, children of a deceased daughter. The new moon is like a giddy young girl—not old enough to show much reflection.
